

EDITORIAL

In the modern world Arbitration has become an important tool for dispute resolution. ADR mechanisms are used to address a variety of contractual disputes rendering opposing parties to settle their disputes outside courts. As this method is growing rapidly in the global arena appropriate education is the need of the hour to keep in pace with continued changes. The CMR University's School of Legal Studies is consistently working towards enriching the learning experience of their students by adopting a holistic approach in imparting quality legal education.

With a purpose to strengthen ADR mechanisms of the learning community we are offering forty hours of intensive training programs for students and legal professionals. The program is a good mix of theory and practical training. This enriching program helps in a smooth understanding of the multifaceted facets of ADR techniques. Master trainer advocates engage in training, the training received during the program assures students to be extremely comfortable in getting positions in international law firms and other institutions.

As a continuous learning process student are engaged in writing research articles on nuances of ADR mechanisms and its relevance in different channels. This Journal of CMR UNIVERSITY E-Journal for "Dispute Settlement and Arbitration (online)" is a venture to tap the best potential of the students and help them to understand that ADR is a way forward in this progressive era. This issue has once again contained long articles, short articles, and case comments. The articles unravel different complexity of dispute resolution examining the knowledge and scope of the evolving field of dispute resolution.

The editorial team has put tremendous effort to bring this issue. With the constant effort and guidance of Adv. Vidya Selvamony the journal has received good reception amongst the student community.

I thank all the members of the editorial team and in particular Judge Sudhir Jain for accepting our invitation to be a member of the editorial board and all the writers who have contributed to this issue.

Finally, I am thankful to the management of the CMR University for their constant support and encouragement in all our endeavors.

Prof (Dr) T.R. Subramanya

Dean

School of Legal Studies

CMR University